

Mars passes Mebsuta, a moderately bright star in Gemini
a naked eye, binocular, and telescope activity

Follow Mars as it makes its way through Gemini in April. At 18 hours UT on April 14, the Red Planet will lie immediately south of the star Mebsuta. This will be best seen through binoculars.